There has been time enough since the contost was settled to calm the hearts of competitors and their friends, and divert their minds from the consideration of their personal matters, and to direct them towards the public welfare. It is a good thing for men to clevate themselves in this manner. To forget self and combine with others for the public good is the exercise of one of the noblest of virtues and one that never fails to elevate all who possess it. Richmond would be incalculably injured by the defeat of the to serve, and whose approbation he desired | will be not at all favorable. to enjoy, by devoting himself to the protection of their interests in securing the triumph of the Conservative party. The people can never trust men who fail to rally to their defence in the hour of danger. We feel perfect confidence in the strength citizens against the indulgence of an idea in the State; and that is that the voters may in special cases disregard the party nomination and elect somebody not endorsed by the party. This is a great error. Independent voting for independent candidates breaks up the harmony and impairs the strength of a party. An implied compact between neighbors to sustain a political organization for the public good broken by some of the parties to it absolves others. And in every breach of faith by voters, and such a disregard of the discipline of a party established for the public good, involve a moral as well as upon due consideration, could hardly be guilty of. If ordinarily it may be considered an act of bad faith deserving censure for a man to desert the party he has joined, what should we say of an act of faithlessness to the Conservative party? That party was established to save the State from the misrule of incompetency and dishonesty; and from its dread consequences to all public interests. There could not be a party with higher mowould be followed by worse effects. Therefore a man who would break his fealty to such a party could be true to none. Breaking faith with it is like faithlessness to the Commonwealth itself.

But we hope that this warning is no needed, and that the Conservative party in Richmond will continue united and firm until that period, which we hope to see, when Virginia will be relieved from the peril in which she is now placed, and when men may feel free to enjoy their individual that our trade complain seriously of the de preferences without endangering the com-

Let us now go to work, friends, and elect the very good ticket we have, neither tolerating nor compromising with independents in any form. Put the State above individuals, and stand by the army enlisted in her cause.

Councilmen. To-morrow evening the voters of the several wards are to assemble in mass-meeting to select candidates for the two branches of the City Council. The excitement attending the nominations made on last Friday for the various city officers has thrown into the background a matter of greater importance. It is more important to have good Councilmen than that the City Sergeant or the Mayor should be a particular person; and yet people have devoted days of work and oceans voters of the merits of their favorite for each of those offices, whilst nobody seems to be endeavoring to secure for us a Council of tensible, intelligent, practical business-men, who know what a great city ought to be and Low such a one may be aided and assisted in

In your ward, you say, the men are not running whom you wish to see nominated? Then be it yours to see that they do run. The most prosperous mechanic, the most accomplished lawyer, the most successful merthese--will take pleasure in serving you if you will only nominate them. They don't want to tell you that they will run for a to do so. But if you go to your ward meeting and nominate them, they will stand for either branch of the Council. Especially will they stand for the Board of Aldermen, whose term is longer, and which is therefore more to the taste of the men whom you think you cannot induce to serve you.

Isn't it your duty to do all you can to secure good ordinances for the city? Think of it. The Council has charge of your streets, your public buildings, your private residences indeed, your water-works, your gas-works, your very health, your peace, your prosperity. A wise body may realize your highest hopes in more than one way. An unwise body may cause you to rue the day that you put it into power. See to it that if we are to have a body of the latter kind, you be not responsible for it. For whatever men are nominated by the Conservative party will, we take it for granted, be elected. No other ward is so blind as to wish to be classed along with Jackson Ward to ask for improvements. See, therefore, that to-morrow evening you do your duty in the premises. Select your best men for the City

We say to the Lynchburg Virginian that any editor who sends his paper to a subscriber before the price is paid deserves to postage upon all his issues as a means of teaching him his business, though such a man, we suppose, would not have ready money enough to enable him to comply with such a law. Under the new law the postage upon the Virginian would be about onefourth of what it now is.

Our Whig neighbor produces what it calls

"statement and explanation" of the express troubles on the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio line, from the Suffolk Herald. The explanation" is no defence, and is no clearer than that already made by General MAHONE, which simply blamed the Danville railroad and ADAMS & Co. The Danville company was defended completely by Colonel Buroad, and ADAMS & Co. are pretty well vindicated by the fact that they have made terms with, we believe, all other railroads of any consequence in the United States. This is all the world to nothing against General MAHONE! The Whig says: "Richmond should have influence enough to secure an express connection either by the Petersburg or Dan-

"ville road, or both." That is, an express connection with the Atlantic, Mississippi How can the people of Richmond do this? Both the Petersburg and Danville roads contract with ADAMS & Co. to conduct the express business over their lines. They could but offer to the people of Richmond and to General Manone the same facilities they have. Neither of the roads could with justice to itself establish for a short distance an express to do what ADAMS & Co. do so much better than they possibly can. It would not pay, and would not satisfy the public.

But has it come to this that the people are called upon in some way to do something to repair the mismanagement on the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio road? That work be longs to the management of that road; and if something is not done by that management in a reasonable time to remedy the Conservative party, and every man can best evils now suffered by a large community, prove his devotion to the people he sought the public judgment upon that management

As to that we know nothing. Our citizens and our corresponwhich sometimes meets favor in rare spots dents from the Southwest tell a different story. > THE EXPRESS QUESTION .- The Richmond Dispatch, stung to the quick by the overwhelming defeat of the Tom Scott party in the proposed change of gauge of the Richmond and Danville road, commenced and is keeping up a vigorous war on General Mahone's Consolidated Express. In this war the Dispatch has the assistance of several other journals .- Lynchburg Republican.

If the Republican is as far from being actuated by a wish to please General Ma-HONE as the Dispatch is from being moved by any other consideration than the public good, it will not hereafter charge bad motives where there is so plainly room for good ones. The attempt of Mahone's apologists to sustain him in his course is too absurd to deceive anybody. No unprejudiced mind can fail to see the folly of his course, and if we were as uncharitable as the Republican we would add that none but a man to whom especial gratification at the nomination of when its representatives rise in the Council a free-pass is an object would undertake to defend such an outrage upon the people living between Richmond and Bristol.

A Card from General Peyton Wise The following card speaks for itself. It is worthy of the man and of his name. We knew that it would never be said of him that "at the bidding of Acentes our Hecroa led on the Greeks." His card has the ring of the true metal. Read it, all ye who feel disappointed, and imitate a noble example: A Card to the Conservative People of Richmond: I take the earliest opportunity of declaring that my most hearty and active support shall be given to Mr. Kelley and the other gentlemen named by the Convention of yesterday. They all richly deserve my support, whether as being the choice of a convention to which my own claims were submitted, as the nominees of the Conservative party, or as men every way worthy and capable.

If any bitternesses have been engendered by the canvass for nomination, let them cease. Such feelings are alike idle and unpatriotic. The claims of individuals are absolutely nothing in comparison with the maintenance of the great principle which the Conservative party embodies. That must be upheld at all hazards. Let us all unite, then, not languidly, but heartily, enthusias-tically, to elect the whole Conservative ticket by a larger majority even than that of last fall. The Indian and the Negro. Young in time, old in wrongs, this country has to hear a great deal that is painful to all good and sensible men. On Tuesday the House Committee on Territories had to listen to a pointed speech that had in it a vast history crystalized into a few sentences. Colonel Boudinor addressed the committee in behalf of organizing the Territory of Oklahoma, and thus introduced his remarks:

"A few days ago I took my seat in the gallery of the House of Representatives of the United States of America, attracted by the discussion of the Indian question in the greatest, if not the most orderly, legislative body in the world. Learned statesmen and eloquent orators were giving their views upon the subject, and discoursing of the wrongs and the rights and the interests of the Indian race. Looking towards the Speaker's desk I saw, in the position Clay, a Macon, once occupied by a distinguished repand a Banks, a the lately enfranchised resentative of African race. A colored man, but yesterday company whose boasted motto is "Virginia a slave, was presiding over the deliberations of the representatives of proud States, and directing the discussion upon the rights and interests of the Indian, the original owner of all their country, and always as free as ties which are enjoyed by every other city the birds of his mountains and plains. DEBT OF NEW YORK CITY .- The New York Tribune is alarmed at the fact that the net debt of that city has increased in the last three years by over thirty millions of dollars, and predicts that bankruptey will stare the city in the face in a few years unless such a steady, uninterrupted increase of the city's indebtedness is stopped. There were issued on the line of this road need be cited than in the month of April bonds to the amount cially disgraceful that the sum of $10,000 a public-school building without issuing bonds. THE RICHMOND NOMINATIONS .- The Conservatives of Richmond nominated on yesterday a most admirable ticket for the approaching municipal election. While all the selections are judicious, and the names presented are such as will attract general approbation, we may be pardoned for expressing Mayor Keiley.
